THE PRESENT STATE OF THE COUNTRY. In Bornoo at present-as a rule nothing was grown except tobacco. The strip of land on the western coast of North Borneo was fairly populated by natives and there a good deal of saro was grown. This was a very valuable product but its production was entirely in the hands of the nutives. By far the greater portion on the east side and the north was almost totally uninhabited and one vast forest-a dense jungle. He and a party had gone for 120 miles up the Kina-Batangan river and had tried to land at several places but found they could not get five yards without cutting their road. The whole coast was surrounded by mangrove, extending for a mile or a mile and a half in depth with an unknown depth of water or mud balow it. There were no roads and it was absolutely impossible to get from one part to another by land except by cutting a road. The Government as yet had made no roads, so that connection was entirely by sea or river. The various estates were widely scattered. The nearest estate to Sandakan on the one hand was 40 miles, on the other hand about 80 miles. The only connection between estate and estate or between estates and Sandakan was by steam-launch, and sometimes the weather was so had that one could not get out of Sandakan and round the coast for weeks.

No wonder, then, that many attempts have been made to modify the severity of the dance. Various "slow" Waltzes have been introduced, and the six steps of the measure have On London. been reduced in some cases to four ungainty hops, and in others to a couple of shuffling stides. This latter is, we say pase, protty much what Herr Strauss means by the "conversation dence" the smallest degrou artistic, it must at least be allowed the merit of being less trying to figures inclined to embonpoint and to muscles flacoid therefore, Strauss can give, us something between this "conversation dance," and the true ON GERMANY -Waltz, and can wed it to his own characteristic strains, we shad all be grateful to him. His Minuel Waltz is to be introduced at the approaching Carnival to the elite of the Austrian aristocracy, and we can hardly doubt that we shall ON BOMBAY. soon hear more of it. It may, as we have said, prove as fatal to the old trois temps as that usurper was Tatal to the deax temps and the galop; but even then there would be consolation if it revived that taste for dancing in circles where it is fast passing into abeyance and discounte. Even our "smartest"-and laziest-Society need not fear to have its dignity ruffled, and its susceptible nerves apset, by the gentle, rhythmical movements of the Minuet and if the Waltz-is to go, we do not know that it can leave behind it a better substitute than this graceful and half-forgotten predecessor. For the Minust is eminently a drawing-room dance-eminently a dance for well-bred people, anxious above all things not to agitate them- Banksselves, and not to damage their dignity or their dresses; and while the consequences of failure in it are not quite so disastrons as in the case of China Borneo . its younger rivals, it affords abundant oppor-China Sugar tunity for the display of elegance and skill. old-fashioned "Landler," a slow Visuan dance of some twenty sets, which, when reduced to six sets in three-four time, became a favourite dance, and rapidly spread from the Austrian capital all over the civilised world The present composer reduced the sets to four, and introduced, as nfurther reform, thesix-step waltz, which has also made the round of every ball-room in the world. Herr Strauss has now retraced his steps, since he has satisfied himself that the present generation is either not strong enough for or not inclined to the rapid whirl of the true Vienna dance, and that a slower pace is required to suit the taste of these degenerate times "Look round the ball room," says Herr Strauss, "and you will find, an matter how delicious the waltz music that the orchestra may be playing, that the majority of the ladies remain sented while the gentlemen lounge around the pillars and doors. All real pleasure in dancing is lost, and only the rhythmical Con-
